SECTION B

COMPREHENSION (20 Marks)

MONGO PARK AND THE NIGER RIVER

The Niger River is the longest river in West Africa. It takes its source from the Fouta Jalon mountains in Guinea and enters the sea in the Delta state of Nigeria. The main tributary of the Niger River is the River Benue. The Benue joins the Niger at Lokoja. Some of the important towns on the River are Bamako and Timbuktu in Mali and Niamey in Niger. The Niger River is about 2600 miles long. It takes a whole year for the flood water from Guinea to reach Nigeria. The floods from the headwaters reach Nigeria at a time the area is experiencing heavy rainfall. This causes the rivers to rise to between thirty and forty feet. The great flood comes with large quantities of sand and silt. The sand and silt create sand banks and finally form the great delta at the mouth of the River Niger. Mungo park sent by the African Association to explore the River Niger. he arrived during the season of harvest. First, he stayed with Dr. Laidley to become acclimatized. He also learned the mandingo language. Mungo park was a tall and lanky fellow. The people were very hospitable. He had little money. The people gave him a lot of food and fresh milk. At the same time they were suspicious of him. Some of the people thought that he was a spy and that he had been sent to discover their military weakness. Others thought he was an infidel and has been sent to plan the downfall of Islam. Mungo park was more comfortable with the ordinary people. Those in authority were anxious to get rid of him. They were eager to send him to the next province or to the next world. Mungo park had little money. He was almost always broke. The common people were sympathetic. It was from the common people that he had friends and helpers. He was not successful in his search to find the mouth of the Niger River on his first journey. On his second journey the authorities knew that he was not a spy but others were still cautious of him. He hired a canoe and few people to travel on the great river. It is very difficult to navigate on the River Niger. The main reason was that there were a lot of rapids and cataracts. The water moves very swiftly on the rapids and cataracts. There was a big rapid at Bussa. The canoe they were using capsized. Unfortunately, Mungo park's head hit a rock. He died later. That ended the sad story of Mungo park, one of the famous explorers of his time
